

Ways to help AICM besides work projects

AICM would like support from our ministry teams and churches in training of our missionary staff. This would be more for teachers or house parents but other staff may be interested in learning new skills. We would also like individuals with special experiences or skills to possibly spend time with students.

Special projects with students: we would love to offer a wider variety to our students by allowing individuals with a specific talent, craft or experience to share with the student body as appropriate. Careers would you like to speak to the young people about your job or ministry, describing what you do and how you came to that position? This would help instill hope and give students direction as they decide what they can do with their life as many have no experience of people having employment outside of nursing, teaching, cops and fireman. Many students have a very limited understanding of the world outside our immediate area, individuals with great stories and information from your culture or experiences in other areas of the world or from a different area of the country could also share with students and staff alike.

Areas we would like training in are as follows for teachers: cooperative learning, differentiated instruction, use of technology in the classroom, reading strategies, writing strategies, math etc...

Other training needs: team building, leading people through difficult situations, rape, abuse, drugs, death, youth ministry related topics, personal leadership and creating leaders, service projects.

Please contact the ministry team coordinator if you are interested in helping in this way.
